"Two Seeds"

A long time ago, a farmer laid two seeds at a common place. He added suitable manure, fertilizers, and water into them. He took care of both and watered the plants daily. Both of the seeds were impressed with the farmer's care and love. But both of the seeds had different opinions about their growth. One of the seeds wanted to grow rapidly and wished to touch the sky as soon as possible. Whilst the second seed was afraid to open its buds, he thought if he grew, then a snail would eat him. 4 marks CO4 BL1

As time passed, the first seed grew and became tall. He spread his roots deep into the soil. Now, he was able to quench his thirst with his widespread roots. Soon, beautiful flowers bloomed that fascinated each passer-by as the dew on its petals shone with the sunlight. On the other hand, the second seed did not grow because of his negative attitude and petrified nature. As he was always afraid of damaging his delicate sprouts by the hard soil, he could not spread his roots. One day, the growing plant asked the little one, "Why do you not grow? It's been years since the farmers laid both of us. If you need any help, please let me know. I would be happy to serve you." But the little one once tried to ignore him and sooner he replied, "If I send my roots into the ground below, I don't know what I will encounter in the dark. And if I were to open my blossoms, a small child may pull me from the ground. No, it is much better for me to wait until it is safe." Then, one day, a hen and her brood of chicks wandered and looked for food. They found the waiting seed and they ate it.

When graduation day came, the young man's father called him into the study. The father handed him a wrapped gift and congratulated him on his graduation and his achievement. Looking disappointed, the son opened the gift to find a lovely, leather-bound journal, with the young man's name embossed on the cover. He angrily raised his voice, threw down the journal and stormed out. The young man had not seen his father since graduation day. He became successful and was wealthy like his father, with a beautiful home and family. He came to realize his father was aging and it may be time to put the past behind them. Just then, he received a message that his father had passed, and he had to return home to take care of the estate. As the mourning son regretfully returned home, he began searching through his father's important papers and saw that still new journal, just as he had left it. He opened it, and as he flipped through the pages a car key dropped from the back of the journal. A dealer tag was attached to the key that read "Paid in full.
